Flexible Software to Meet Your Needs

MicroMain™ software is designed to be flexible enough to meet your specific needs. From configuration options to organization-wide standards to personal user preferences, MicroMain gives you the ability to use the software in the way that makes the most sense for your organization.

Access the Software Your Way

With MicroMain, you can access the software through the Internet or through your own organization's network or intranet.

Some companies prefer to have the software hosted at MicroMain's secure data center, purchasing access on a monthly basis. Users log on through the web to access the software online at any time and from any place. Licenses are for concurrent users per log-in.

Others choose to install the software on-site, purchasing the licenses. For multi-site organizations, some install the software at each location and others install it at one central location with additional locations accessing the software at the central location. Licenses are for concurrent users.

MicroMain customers also do both—purchase and own the licenses and also take advantage of hosting services.

Match Benefits to Business Needs
